

A horizontal strip of 24 color swatches, each a small rectangular piece of fabric or paper. The colors transition from a very light, almost white pink on the left, through various shades of pale pink, to a medium pink, then a vibrant red, and finally to a deep, dark red on the right. The swatches are arranged in a single row, showing a smooth color gradient.A color calibration chart featuring 24 vertical color bars in a single row. The bars display a wide range of colors, including various shades of gray, primary and secondary colors, and skin tones, used for ensuring color accuracy in imaging.A horizontal row of 24 skeins of yarn, each a different shade. The colors range from deep purples and blues on the left, through various tones of blue and green, to bright yellows and oranges on the right. The skeins are arranged in a single row, showing a wide variety of hues.